"I Remember"

A Novel Way of Running a Bar

By GEORGE KIRCHHUBEL
As told to Frank LaPierre

(A continuing series of reminiscences about old days in Daly City-Colma,)

No one really knew where Joe "Pop" Brown came from.

He said he was born in San Francisco and the Great Earthquake and Fire destroyed his birth certificate.

But I suspect he entered the United States from his native land through Canada.

He was such a talker that he was able to convince the Social Security office he was a native American. They bought his story and he received a small pension.

Shortly after, Pop moved into a little house owned by Bob Sylvestri's parents on Werner Street in Daly City.

He started doing odd jobs around town, mostly for the Top of the Hill merchants.

Back in 1937, Pop even worked for me.

I handed him a broom and a mop and he gave my bar "a lick and a promise," as we used to say.

Brown was like a bantam rooster, small and cocky.

He fancied himself an expert in the art of fisticuffs and had it in his mind that he could outbox anyone around Daly City and Colma.

One rainy afternoon inside my Mission Street saloon, Pop began sparring with Louie Linhares. As they got in close to each other, Pop began jabbing right into Louie's ribs.

Louie jumped into the air and pretended he was hurt by one of Pop's punches and said he had had enough.

Buster Beecher jumped up next and challenged Pop.

Buster began clowning around and while the two were locked in a clinch, a loose piece of Beecher's tooth fell out and landed on the floor.

Immediately, Beecher dropped to the floor and began looking through the sawdust, while above him, still shaking his fist, was Pop yelling.

"You'd better not get up or I'll give you some more."

Later, Pop apologized to Beecher telling him, "Son, I didn't really want to hit you that hard. Here's six dollars. Go out and get that tooth fixed."

No matter what Beecher told Pop, the little man was convinced he had knocked out the tooth.

When World War II broke out, Pop was in big demand as a dishwasher, janitor and all-around helper. Manpower was scarce and Pop was one of the few available people around.

There are a hundred stories circulating through the bars of Mission Street about Pop Brown during those war years.

One of them concerns his work at a top of the hill tavern — not mine — during that period.

Early one morning I was in that saloon having a drink. Pop was working behind the bar. As I watched, Pop filled a beer glass with bonded whiskey. Noticing that I was watching him, Pop came over to where i was seated.

With one delighted tilt of his arm and head, Pop drained the beer glass filled with the whiskey, smiled and wiped his mouth.

"You know, George, the monkey that owns this bar thinks he's clever. he's been marking the whiskey bottles with soap at night after the bar closes so he can tell how much has been sold and if anyone is drinking his stuff without paying. With that, Pop took a damp rag and erased the soap mark, replacing it with a new mark where the current whiskey level had fallen.

Later, the bar owner came in and began looking over the marked bottles of whiskey.

Apparently satisfied that all was well in the inventory department, he turned to Pop and asked him to have a drink of whiskey.

"Sorry, sir, I never drink while I'm on duty behind this bar. I must keep a clear head. I will have a small drink, however, when I am off duty."

The bar owner turned to me and, flushed with

Tempers Flare In Broadmoor; Insurance Offer

By NANCY STANCILL

"If we let the Broadmoor Police Department slip out of our hands now, we'll have Daly City's government over our heads in the future," said Ed Throne at a Broadmoor town meeting.

The two-and-a-half hour public meeting Friday night on the Broadmoor Police Commission's proposed budget was rancorous. About 70 residents were on hand, primarily to object to a suggestion that Broadmoor continue contracting its police services from the Daly City Police Department.

Much apparent anger, from loud catcalls to jeers, was directed at Police Commissioners John McCloskey and Dean Davenport. The two commissioners were accused by several speakers of being "pro-Daly City" in talks between the two jurisdictions on continuation of the police contract. Talks had begun Wednesday.

Several tempers flared at the end of the tense meetings and two men were asked to refrain from fist fighting.

The public hearing included seven speakers from the audience, reports of contract talks from commissioners and the citizens advisory committee which participated and comments by Daly City and Broadmoor police officials.

Commission Chairman McCloskey told the crowd that the lowest liability insurance estimate the commission had been able to obtain for the Broadmoor police personnel was $18,000.

Broadmoor's Police Department insurance was

DC Druggist Accused

A one-year investigation of a prominent Daly City pharmacist ended Monday when State Department of Health investigators filed medical fraud charges in North County Municipal Court.

Investigator Leo Padreddii said today the alleged charges against Sylester 'Syl' Flowers of San Francisco to one of the "biggest medical violations in San Mateo County that we've heard of."

Flowers is the owner of the Apothecary Pharmacy at 1500 Southgate Ave. in Daly City.

He also reportedly is the owner of two pharmacies of the same name in Oakland.

Padreddii said investigators accused Flowers of allegedly overcharging the state's medical program $34,000 from January, 1974 to March, 1976.

The pharmacist, Padreddii said, was notified of the charges against him on Monday and has been advised both verbally and by letter to surrender himself.

Flowers' attorney, John Green of Palo Alto, said his client is certain that an impartial audit will prove his innocence.

He said that investigators took an unrepresentative sampling of Flowers' business records, made unjustifiable

DC Still Will Mull Rationing

Daly City has reached a 25 per cent reduction in water use, City Engineer David Macabee told the City Council Monday night.

But City Manager David Rowe indicated that councilmen still would consider a mandatory water rationing ordinance in its study session April 4.

The proposed ordinance is one suggested by the Bay Area jurisdictions.

Rowe disclosed that water use compared to last year's figures has been dropping steadily, but this week's reading is the first time it has dipped to the recommended 25 per cent overall conservation level.

Mayor Albert Teglia commended the citizen efforts and said he would prefer voluntary reduction.

"Lawns are getting brown, but I've never seen residents so conscious of water conservation," he exulted.

Mayor Pro Tempore William Schumacher said he believes the city should make water-saving devices available to residents. The matter will be discussed next Monday.

In other business, the council:

JESD Educator in Pension Conflict

One of Jefferson Elementary School District's most venerable employes is the subject of a complaint being investigated by the California State Teachers Retirement Service (STRS).

A complaint has been filed against Marjorie Tobias by the Sacramento office of the California Teachers Association.

Miss Tobias has been involved for more than 50 years with JESD as a teacher, principal and, presently, as a $10-a-day educational consultant.

The complaint alleged that Miss Tobias is an employe of the district making more than $5,000 annually. while receiving a full pension from STRS of more than $19,000.

Under a state law, a retired teacher is allowed to earn up to $5,000 a year as a district employe while receiving retirement pay.

But district officials argue that Miss Tobias is classified as an "independent contractor," rather than a district employe. Thus, they say, she is not subject to the $5.000 limit.

Dr. John Trompeter, assistant superintendent in charge of administrative services for JESD, said Miss Tobias has been under contract as a special projects consultant to the district for two fiscal years.

He listed her earnings from August 1976 through February 1977 as $10,250, but said he could not locate records of her 1975-76 payments.

As a special projects consultant, Miss Tobias' duties were listed and approed by the JESD governing board as civil defense and disaster preparation, preparing materials for substitute teachers and other projects as asssigned by the superintendent.

Besides receiving the approval of the district governing board, the district arrangement with Miss Tobias also was

Conditional Children's Services Funding

Daly City Community for Children's Services' Board of Directors is "working out its problems," according to the board's president, the Rev. Raymond M. Howard.

The controversial board has hired a new center director and is revising its bylaws, he told Daly City's City Council Monday night.

But the City Council seemed skeptical that the problems of the not quite two-year-old day care program have ended.

Councilmen voted to grant DCCCS only "conditional" funding in the 1976 nine-month entitlement revenue sharing budget.

The revenue sharing allocation of $12,900 is conditional on the findings of a joint city-county audit of DCCCS records and a satisfactory review of its board procedures.

The city is paying $400 as its share of the audit, which has not yet been completed.

The DCCCS has come under heavy criticism in recent months for the firing of its center director, the fact that three of its board members are related and a fourth is related to a center employe.

City, county, state and federal funds go into the center and government representatives have been looking more closely at its workings.

"We need funding to continue, to work out these details," said Howard of the center's much-discussed problems.

He told the council that bylaw revisions, which include provisions for open meetings and restraints on board hirings and firings, will be forwarded to the city in the near future.

Another DCCCS spokesman, Mrs. Rhina Gonzales, urged council to increase the $12,900 conditional allocation to the $57,351 the center requested.

Mrs. Gonzales, program development coordinator for DCCCS, said it costs $99,000 to operate such a facility.

The center's new director, Adrian Shapiro, stressed the need for continuing the center.

"If I felt that day care was babysitting, I wouldn't be there," she said. "This is the most important part of these children's education."

However, several city residents questioned the center's operation.

Roseann Emerson said the center serves 24 children and "you divide 24 into $99,000, that's a lot of money. I would rather give it to the parents and let them stay home."

Robert Stevenson questioned whether the staff of eight is qualified and Ernie Pezzola said, "I think they need a new set of directors to see that it's run right."

Inez Gray, who identified herself as a DCCCS parent, said the center is "a good school for kids" but "the grownups (board members) can't communicate."

Guadalupe Center Funding

Health Care: DC Raps County

The Daly City Council Monday night sharply rapped San Mateo County for "divorcing itself" from North County health needs.

The criticism was aired as the City Council took action to increase the proposed nine-month entitlement in federal revenue sharing funds for Guadalupe Health Center.

City Manager David Rowe had recommended that the facility, located in Daly City, be funded for the 1976 entitlement period at $15,000. Guadalupe Health Center has previously received $122,500 in Daly City revenue sharing monies.

But after listening to a parade of witnesses asking that the amount be increased, the council raised the allocation to $25,000.

Voting against the increase was Councilman McRobert Stewart, who said Daly City is "assuming responsibility where it has no business being involved.

"If we continue, the county will divorce itself completely from North County health care."

Councilman Victor Kyriakis, who proposed the increase, admitted that "health care is not a normal city function. We look to the county.

"But the county is not doing what it should be doing." The vote for the fund increase was 3-1.

James Valentine, director of the health center, requested that council allocate $75,000 in revenue sharing to the center because "the county has not indicated any attempt to help, with Chope (Community Hospital) remaining open."

Guadalupe receives some federal monies, Valentine said. He added that the center will treat an estimated 22,000 persons in the coming year — with 70 per cent coming from Daly City.

Valentine called Daly City's action "a step in the right direction," but added, "I don't think it absolves the county of responsibility for care of the North County's medically indigent."

Allocations for several other items were reduced.

Judge Dismisses Visitacion's Mountain Suit

A judge has dismissed a lawsuit seeking reversal of the San Mateo County Board of Supervisors' rejection of 5,420 homes on San Bruno Mountain, but has given would-be developer Visitacion Associates until April 12 to file a proper action.

The ruling by Presiding Superior Court Judge William Lanam, announced today, dismisses the present action as "ambigious and uncertain."

Attorneys for Visitacion Associates have referred to modifications that might resolve some of the uncertainity, Judge Lanam said in his three-paragraph ruling.

The San Francisco based developer filed suit last fall, alleging that the County Supervisors' 3-2 vote was legally deficient in that supervisors allegedly failed to consider regional housing needs in taking their action.

The suit also cited several other alleged legal causes as to why the board's action should be reversed.

The county, through Deputy Dist. Atty. Michael D. McGracken, responded with a demurrer, alleging that Visitacion's lawsuit was too ambigious and uncertain in its allegations, making it impossible for the county to respond.

Judge Lanam's decision sustains the county position.

But the practical impact of his decision merely delays legal proceedings until Visitacion Associates amends the present suit to remove the uncertainity, or files a new action.

Attorneys for Visitacion Associates have indicated that they will amend the suit, a spokesman said.

In the same decision, the judge ruled that the position by the county and by the Committee to Save San

Red Cross Fiscal Woes

By GEORGE GOLDING

Plans for a local reorganization of Red Cross, one of the nation's and the world's oldest and best known charitable organizations, are beginning here.

The basic reason is money.

There is not enough of it for all the programs Red Cross has gotten itself into over the years.

Symbolic of this problem is the Red Cross participation in blood banking.

With scores of other nonprofit blood banks in operation around the country Red Cross has suddenly come face to face with the necessity to make changes.

After years of literally running into the red on interchanges of blood credits Red Cross anounced recently it is no longer taking part in the nationwide blood banking system on its previous basis.

A reaction of bitterness abounds in the "private sector," the world of nonprofit blood banks such as Peninsula Memorial Blood Bank in Burlingame.

Privately, some blood bankers seem to feel they would be better off if Red Cross would get entirely out.

The same question is one of those raised from the inside.

Here on the Peninsula, a "consolidation committee" has been studying this and several other problems in recent months.

In February, they came in with a report making five major recommendations:

- Establish a central administrative center for Red Cross in this county, combining services now scattered among several offices.
- Use the existing Burlingame headquarters only as an interim center until other quarters can be found.
- Use the existing Sequoia area building as a service center for South San Mateo County.
- Rent out part of the Sequoia building to a city or county governmental agency, thereby reducing Red Cross costs.
- Set aside funds to continue operation of the Sequoia center until such a renter can be found.

The last recommendation makes clear the importance of these suggestions, in the minds of the consolidation committee.

Money is a very important part of this crisis.

Henry Duque, chairman of the committee, said that such changes might not have to be made, if money is found.

In the immediate past, local chapters of Red Cross have been spending themselves into a deficit.

Reserves are said to be dwinding at a rate that will wipe them out in four or five years.

This would mean that Red Cross would have zero ability to respond to the disasters it is charged with alleviating.

There have been staff cuts and other steps taken to save money.

"We're going to have further staff cutbacks unless we can raise additional funds," Duque said.

"In round numbers, the current expected cost of services that we must provide during the coming year is $1.4 million.

"Our budgeted income is $1.084 million.

"That leaves a $316,000 deficit. If we can raise that, fine.

"Red Cross isn't going under but inflation has hit us just as it has hit everyone else."

Though no one likes to criticize, one of the reasons for Red Cross' financial problems is the relative success of the "United Way" form of giving.

As people become accustomed to the idea of "one big give," they gradually give less to individual agencies.

And as inflation tightens its grip on budgets, there is less to give.

Still, Red Cross is charged with providing certain services. Its charter from the federal government specifies that it must provide disaster relief at floods, earthquakes, fires and storms.

Its biggest financial cost is providing services to military families.

Then there are the traditional Red Cross services, the ones we all grew up with — water safety, first aid instruction, nursing and health guidance (such as the current classes in cardiopulmonary resuscitation).

In addition, there are the blood banking programs and "Red Cross Youth," a sort of cadet corps of volunteers.

All these cost money, and when money is short, cuts must come.

On the Peninsula, the Red Cross plan is for those cuts to come in administration, rather than in services.

That's what the consolidation plan is all about, said Duque.

Water Proposals Go Before Public

California Water Service Co. has announced its proposed timetable for creating a program of rules and penalties governing mandatory water rationing in Peninsula cities served by the firm.

The company serves Woodside, Atherton, Portola Valley, part of Menlo Park, San Carlos, San Mateo, South San Francisco, Colma and Broadmoor.

Public hearings on the company's plans will be held at

- 10 a.m. April 12 at the San Mateo City Hall.
- 10 a.m. April 13 at the Menlo Park City Hall.
- 10 a.m. April 14 at the Orange Avenue Library in South San Francisco.

According to the company, a customer's water bill will indicate in the coming months how much you were over or under your allotment. Also indicated will be your allotment for the next billing period.

The aim is to have consumers use 75 per cent of the water they used during the same period a year ago.

The company says if you feel your allotment is not correct, you can write to it and request a review of the situation.

Branch offices of the firm are now stocking water saving kits for their customers.

RECIPE FEATURE

THE GOURMET By Petrini's Presents

CHICKEN AND DUMPLINGS

3½ to 4 lb. stewing chicken cut into serving pieces. Place cut up chicken on a rack in a heavy kettle, add giblets, 4 or 5 cups chicken base or stock, 1 med. size onion, carrot, celery stalk and a sprig of thyme. Cover and simmer gently 3 to 4 hours or until meat begins to loosen from bones. Add more chicken stock if needed. During the last 20 min. of cooking skim off excess fat and add 1 tsp. salt. Now use the following dumpling recipe:

¼ tsp. bouquet garni beef
½ cup milk plus 2 tbls.
1 cup biscuit mix
⅛ tsp. salt
½ tsp. parsley
¼ tsp. sugar

Combine all ingredients except biscuit mix. Mix well and stir into biscuit mix to make a soft dough. Drop spoonfuls onto chicken and replace cover tightly and simmer 20 min. without lifting cover; arrange chicken on a platter; surround with dumplings. Makes 8 dumplings. Serves 4 to 6 people.

Champagne on Ice

Lorraine Heath

The champagne is on ice, the chicken ready to marinate, and the chef waiting in the wings to create some scrumptious French pastries, all for this weekend's fashion show and luncheon being sponsored by the Holy Angels Women's Guild.

This year the women of the parish have elected to stage the major fund-raising event in the Hope Lutheran Church parish hall, located at 55 San Fernando Way in Daly City, because the redwood and glass structure will complement the "Over the Rainbow" theme.

Mrs. Diane Lionetti is the chairman and Mrs. Terri Lagomarsino and Mrs. Robin Tilton are in charge of reservations. Mrs. Jackie Norman is doing the publicity. Fashions are from Veltri's Boutique in South San Francisco and Jan's Bridals of West Portal. The luncheon will begin at noon on April 2. Tickets are available for $7 per person.

IN A MORE serious vein, the parish is planning an evening program featuring Melvin D. Turner of the Citizens's Active Participation Through Utilization of Relevant Education, (C.A.P.T.U.R.E.).

Turner will address members of the Women's Guild on next Wednesday evening (April 6) at 8 p.m. in the parish hall. The program is funded by the Department of Justice to educate the general public on crime prevention. Turner will deal with the subjects of residential burglary, why and how to report a crime and what to do to prevent personal assault.

IT'S TIME TO BE creative! The Daly City Senior Citizens Club will sponsor an Easter Parade featuring chapeaux designed and created by members of the club during the big Easter party planned for April.

Mrs. Louis Buttler, in charge of publicity, reports that the Easter party will top even the great St. Patrick's day event which saw the entire Lincoln Park Club House decorated to resemble a bit of Ireland. Vases of Bells of Ireland and shamrocks were intermingled with bouquets of garden flowers to complement the mandatory green garb of club members. Irish prayers and Irish music set the tone of the day and even the luncheon, Big Macs, green frosted cupcakes and ice cream, blended well with the Gaelic theme.

MAKE YOUR reservations now for the next Fifty-Plus Club junket, this time to McClellan's Acres of Orchids and the Silver Crest Residence.

Tickets, costing $7.25, covers the cost of the bus trip and the price of luncheon at the residence. The date for this outing will be April 14.

APRIL IS A BIG month for the Friends of the Daly City Library who have scheduled a membership drive plus several Library week observances to be staged between April 17 and 23.

The president, Mrs. Verna Teglia, is excited to be able to announce that the Library week observances will include the inauguration of a rental collection at the Westlake branch of the library.

The new collection, sponsored and funded by the Friends will provide additional copies of high demand titles that will be available for a nominal rental fee. It is hoped that the new collection will help satisfy the demands for best sellers while they are still on the best seller list. It is anticipated that the revenue from this service will be sufficient for the purchase of new titles for the collection as the need arises.

In addition to introducing the community to the rental program, the members will hold membership teas each day at alternating branchs of the library system. Mrs. Denise Schwarzbach is the Membership Committee chairwoman.

FANTASTIC FOOD, fun and fellowship is what the Christopher Columbus PTA is promising persons who attend the school's annual international dinner.

William Gorman, president of the PTA, said tickets to the April 19 event are already on sale for $1 for adults and .50c for school age children.

Call the school for more information.

New Dual Name List Program

Before you routinely toss out the literature stuffed with your phone bill this month, take a look at the insert.

Pacific Telephone is introducing a new dual name listing.

For instance, if a listing has contained only the husband's name, the company will allow the adding of the wife's name to the same line.

If you share an apartment or house with another person who has the same last name, dual name listing will let you list your first name, initials or nickname, in addition to the name of the other person.

As an individual, you can list your first name and married name, or first name and nickname.

The listings will be provided at no charge as long as additions are to an existing listing.

Daly City Expects New Water Cutback

Daly City will have to adopt an emergency water ordinance, even though residents voluntarily have cut back 22 per cent on water users.

So said City Manager David Rowe last week, in the wake of an action by San Francisco's Public Utilities Commission which imposes a 25 per cent cutback on water use.

Rowe said San Francisco will expect all Peninsula jurisdictions who use Hetch Hetchy water to adopt a rationing ordinance.

Daly City's City Council recently took a preliminary look at the model ordinance prepared by the Bay Area Water Users Association.

There was some question about the need for an ordinance, since city residents have achieved such a substantial decrease on their own.

In addition, council members expressed concern about the model ordinance form, which calls for discontinuance of service as a maximum penalty.

But Rowe feels that the ordinance merely will act as a reinforcement of volunteer efforts now underway.

"I don't think the form of the ordinance is the significant aspect," he said. "The record would indicate that Daly City water users are going to achieve the 25 per cent reduction."

Rowe added that "accordingly, a massive enforcement program would not appear to be necessary."

The city manager said the most drastic cutback by city users has been in lawn watering and other outdoor uses, "but people are trying on the inside as well as the outside."

He noted that the proposed water ordinance will be considered again at the City Council's April 4 study session and could go into effect soon after.

A Special Message To the United AirLines

INSPECTORS, MECHANICS, HELPERS, FUELERS, COMMUNICATIONS and FLIGHT SIMULATOR TECHNICIANS, UTILITY EMPLOYEES, CABIN SERVICEMEN, AND SEAMERS

We bring you best wishes from thousands of your friends and neighbors; all the members of the AFL-CIO unions affiliated with Central Labor Councils in the Bay area.

You are about to vote in an election to determine the Union that will represent you in your next contract negotiations, and administer the many procedures already established for your benefit, protection, and enjoyment by the I.A.M.

Because of our concern for your future in the Labor movement, and for the communities in which all of you live, we are very much interested in the outcome of this election. The slogans "Justice On The Job" and "Service To The Community" have long been associated with the I.A.M. therefore we are concerned for the entire Union and home communities.

Wage earners have only one effective weapon at their disposal. That is Unity. Without unity among workers on the job, the most skillful bargainers can't negotiate the kind of contract the workers ought to have. Without unity among the workers (and their Unions) in the communities, all the social goals we seek for ourselves and our children will be out of reach. It is simple to understand but disturbing to contemplate the alternative.

The Union movement in our area is strong because it has grown and developed inside the AFL-CIO. Our AFL-CIO Unions work together, help each other, and stick together when the going gets rough. We depend on each other, for in unity there is strength. Through this unity we have all helped make many communities better places in which to live and raise our families.

Your Union, the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers, is one of the pillars of our councils. Time and again the I.A.M. has come forward to help members of other AFL-CIO Unions. The I. A. M. has worked for the causes that have made Labor a community force in the Bay area.

The other name on the ballot in this coming election is a small weak association outside the AFL-CIO. For reasons that are not at all clear, it wants to split you off from the mainstream of the Labor movement. They have publicly stated their intention NOT to affiliate with Unions, nor to have ties with them. They have shown little interest in our communities.

If the Labor movement in the Bay area counties starts splintering, fragmenting itself, ultimately there will be no cohesive County Labor movements. THIS IS SOMETHING THE OPPONENTS OF LABOR WOULD APPLAUD. All communities would inevitably suffer.

It's obvious that we need you and so does all of Labor. We need your ideas, your support, and your enthusiasm in our job of helping to make our communities a still better place for families of wage earners to live. We can certainly help you attain the goals you have set for yourselves.

So when you vote, think of the real choices. Strength and Security on the one hand, weakness on the other. The I.A.M. has the backing of ALL other AFL-CIO Unions. The other name on the ballot is ALL alone.

We strongly urge that you vote to remain in the I.A.M.A.W., AFL-CIO. We would like to continue to work with you and support you when you need help. That help cannot come if you are outside the AFL-CIO. Within our federation we can continue to do the job for you and your community.

LET US REMAIN TOGETHER IN STRENGTH AND SECURITY!

MULTI-ETHNIC Days, a Serramonte tradition, will be held on April 19-21.

The program has been extended to three days this year to allow more time for activities to be held.

Some of the things planned include a performance by Irish dancers, music by a black band, and a group of multi-cultural dancers. These programs will be held during certain class and lunch periods.

School ethnic clubs are invited to set up booths in the hall during a designated time. These booths allow students to see costumes, sample foods and view objects of different cultures.

Multi-Ethnic Days promise to be great this year. Anyone interested in organizing a booth or some type of entertainment should see student body Vice President Cheryl Moses.

THE SENIOR class of '77 has been busy planning fund-raisers and events for the spring.

In January they held a car wash; in February they sponsored a Valentine's Day Dance; and in March they sold Kentucky Fried Chicken at the school carnival. Their fund-raiser for April will be a candy sale.

Upcoming events for the seniors are May 21, junior-senior prom; May 27, senior picnic; June 3, graduate night trip to Disneyland; and June 16, commencement.

Senior class officers Angie Tate, Johnny Parker, Karen Madrieres and Leslie Schwarzbach are working hard with other members of the senior class on all of these activities.

SERRAMONTE has something new this year called "Good News Notes."

Every Wednesday, each teacher is asked to write a short, personal, positive note to one student who has done well academically, shown progress, demonstrated a proficiency, exhibited a warm human attitude or improved attendance.

Once the notes are written, the office tries to make a phone call relaying the message. In all cases, the note is mailed home to the parents.

Administrators and teachers at Serramonte believe "Good News Notes" are a way to encourage and congratulate students.

SERRAMONTE's bowling club which meets weekly has elected its new officers.

They are Ronald Chang, president; Joanne McLaughlin, vice-president and Jean Unsworth, treasurer.

The Annual Serramonte Carnival which was held March 11-13 was a great success.

Almost all of the clubs and classes at Serramonte profit financially from this function and would like to thank all those who supported it.

Improve Transit Service

The North Bayshore neighborhood of Daly City will get new and improved bus service on April 4, when SamTrans institutes a new North County route linking Daly City, South San Francisco, Brisbane and San Bruno.

Old Bayshore Route 24-B, with hourly trips from 6:20 a.m. to 6:20 p.m. on weekdays and service every two hours on Saturday, provides continuous trips to Tanforan Shopping Center and offers a new route to the downtown districts of San Bruno and South San Francisco. Route 24-B also will provide close access to the Cow Palace.

Most important, according to SamTrans officials, the new route will tie in with north-south mainline service to begin later this spring. North County passengers will gain access to new express service to downtown San Francisco, International Airport, and southernmost points in the county.

A second SamTrans route beginning on April 4, the Alameda Shopper, will provide Central and South County passengers with 20 trips a day between Sanford and Hillsdale Shopping Centers.

Hyatt Rain Dance

On April 1, from 5 to 8 p.m., the public is invited to a free rain dance and water conservation exhibit in the Atrium Lobby of the Hyatt Regency San Francisco.

In an effort to "dance up a storm" the hotel will feature such rain-making tunes as "Raindrops Keep Falling On My Head," "Stormy Weather," and "Baby, the Rain Must Fall," presented by Al White and his 16-piece Hyatt Regency Orchestra.

Visual backdrop will be provided with the classic Gene Kelly film "Singing In the Rain." Rain dancers are encouraged to wear slickers, rubbers and to bring umbrellas and other appropriate rain paraphernalia.

Water and energy conservation exhibits, and information on how to save our vital resources will be on display from April 1 through April 3. Toilet tank water displacers, shower head water flow restricters and other water conservation devices will be available.

STILL HERE?

Calvin Coolidge is considered to be one of the few Presidents whose sense of humor helped him bear the burdens of his office. One afternoon, he awakened from a nap, opened his eyes, grinned, and said to a friend, "Is the country still here?"

SAVE THE SEALS

Second and third graders in Mrs. Glick's class at Westlake School wrote letters and drew pictures in a campaign to help save the baby seals in Canada. The children also saved money from their allowances to help the course and signed petitions.

NEW VIEWPOINT

Rabbi Herbert Morris of Congregation Beth Israel-Judea discussed new ideas in the very old Book of Job with the Friends of the Daly City Library recently. He was afterwards honored at a no-host luncheon.

Samuel Chandler

"There is a trend toward monotony in the world today. It is no pleasure to fly to Tokyo and find 15 McDonalds with their golden arches or Safeway stores with their California storefronts."

Thus spoke Eddy Feldman, widely recognized and highly successful attorney for big business. Speaking at a seminar sponsored by the California Museum of Science and Industry, Mr. Feldman charged that monotony is ugly however bright it is packaged.

His words recall a problem voiced by Mary Mason Moore and David Redfern as they attempted to produce photographs for their book "The Picture Book of the U.S.A.," (Diadem Books 1976). Mrs. Moore complained that American cities are illustrations that the business of America is business. She speaks of them as canyon cities and cauldrons where the problems of the megalopolis "have come more quickly to boil." She states that cities of America have developed "into what Thomas Jefferson feared when he wrote, 'I view great cities as penitential to the morals, the health and the liberties of man.'"

BOTH FELDMAN and the team of Redfern and Moore agree that Western civilization, especially the United States, must take steps to preserve the individuality of each person. Feldman says that the time has come for manufacturers and merchants to understand that they have reached the limits of trying to dress everyone alike and of placing them in the same kinds of houses and cars.

He says that business is ready to recognize that there is a hunger for individuality in the land, but the leadership necessary to satisfy that hunger has not been supplied by the painters, writers, photographers, actors and musicians who should be the spokesmen of the spirit of man. He says these people have become businessmen themselves.

To help correct such conditions, Moore and Redfern have produced their book to show Americans that even if an artist is uninspired by the present scene, he could easily find his muse in the vivid contrasts that still exist in America and in the dramatic history of the country, "sometimes thrilling and sometimes tragic."

THE THEME of the Moore-Redfern book is wake up America to the personality within." The volume contains 138 color photographs that have been carefully chosen "to show the character of the nation; her landscapes, farms, history, cities, people."

The Moore-Redfern book is mostly photographs with a commentary. On the other hand, a volume entitled "America and Americans" is mostly text accompanied by photographs. The text is by the great John Steinbeck, while the pictures have been prouced by the staff of Viking Press (1966). In this volume, Steinbeck called for the recognition of American "opinions, unashamed and individual." He hoped his book would let Americans be "inspired by curiosity, impatience, some anger, and a passionate love of America and Americans."

Peninsulans to Face Fall Power Shortage

By VERN KROGH

The odds are that you will be without electric power sometime this fall.

If not sooner.

PG&E abhors the term "rolling blackouts."

Company officials predict there may well be "controlled service interruptions." The company has explored every avenue to avoid them.

State energy officials and company representatives earlier this year predicted that, all things falling together, we should be available to avoid them, at least through 1977.

Despite a recent rainfall, however, the year's record drought has continued.

The usually verdant Feather River watershed, where the utility operates eight hydroelectric plants, looks more like the end of autumn than the beginning of spring.

Lake Oroville, which normally holds 3,490,000 acre-feet of water at this time of the year, according to Elmer G. Ames, district manager of PG&E's Oroville District, is already down to 1,546,186 acre-feet.

Its surface is 166 feet below the normal level, and its shoreline of 167 miles has shrunken so drastically that the state has been forced to close down boat launching ramps.

"Northern California is in the worst shape it has ever been in," according to Ames.

This is obvious to even the most casual observer driving up the Sacramento Valley.

The pattern is one of a giant checkerboard, with one field plowed under next to another green with growing grain nurtured by the limited water available.

While some of the Feather River plants are still generating, "pulling at half capacity," to keep the generators in shape (just like blast furnaces in a shut-down steel plant), four have been shut down completely.

The spillway at the Belden Forebay Dam, where usually a beaver can be seen struggling in the rushing water, is dry.

Hydroelectric plants, which normally provide 60 per cent of the company's generating capacity, are at an all-time low.

Last year they provided 39 per cent of the company's electric power, compared with 54 per cent in 1975.

This year it is expected they will provide only 13 per cent.

And the graph continues to slide.

PG&E is looking to other sources.

But many of these, too, have dried up.

Washington and Oregon are in that category.

This year the Northwest

(See POWER, Page 19)

Supervisors Give Jail Facilities High Priority

Construction of a permanent North County jail and an expansion of the work furlough facility in Redwood City to house women prisoners now held in the main jail, were made high priority projects by the County Board of Supervisors Thursday.

To meet projected prisoner housing needs over the next several years and to relieve the immediate overcrowding in the county's existing facilities, the board instructed County Manager David L. Nichols to:

• Investigate the possibility of purchasing property to expand the work furlough facility and to provide an estimated cost of funding of the project in the 1977-78 budget.

• Plan for the construction of a permanent North County jail, with the capacity to hold 50 prisoners, sometime between 1980 and 1983.

• Determine the future status of the county honor camp in La Honda as a possible medium and minimum security facility in light of various conflicts with federal government funding.

The board also reaffirmed a position taken last month, that Sheriff John McDonald prepare a report detailing how his office would take over the operation of the pre-arraignment and detention facility now at the Daly City Jail, and that funds be included in next year's county budget to operate the facility by Daly City if the sheriff cannot take it over by June 30.

For the past two years federal monies have funded the Daly City PDF. The county has been advised that no more federal funds will be forthcoming.

The board action was based on recommendations contained in a 27-page report prepared by the Hughes, Heiss and Associates consulting firm.

The firm identified major deficiencies relating to the county corrections and detention system that had been presented to the board before the final report.

They include:

• Overcrowding in the male prisoner section of the main jail at the Hall of Justice. The report called this the most significant problem facing the county corrections system.

"Despite the aggressive efforts of the Sheriff's Office in classifying virtually all minimum security prisoners into facilities other than the main jail, the average daily population of the men's section this year has totalled 280 persons," the report stated.

"Furthermore," it continued, "projections indicate that even if pre-arraignment detention services are extended to the North County, an additional average daily population or 45 male maximum and medium security prisoners, will need to be held in the main jail by 1980."

• The women's correctional system in the county does not allow for the development of programs sufficient to meet the needs of the female offender.

"The cost per day of operating the jail for females is about 50 per cent more expensive than comparable service for males," the report stated.

"In addition," the report noted, "the women's program occupies space that is only utilized at half of its capacity, and could otherwise be utilized to reduce overcrowding in the men's section."

• The county needs minimum security space for men to reduce overcrowding in the main jail. Within the next five years the county will need more bed space for minimum security male prisoners, even if the La Honda honor camp remains open in its present capacity.

There is some uncertainty as to the future of the camp. The facility currently houses 96 minimum security prisoners. It is located in county park land purchased with federal monies about 15 years ago.

According to the report, the camp has problems getting water and disposing of sewage.

McDonald told the board that water rationing has been in effect at the camp for the past year.

Jay Geller, a representative of the consulting firm, told the board that between $2.5 and $5.1 million in capital improvement costs will be required to construct new or expand existing facilities before 1983.

He said that an increase in operating costs of between $705,000 and $750,000 will be required to provide detention facilities in the North County and to maintain a medium security facility in La Honda.

Supervisor James Fitzgerald agreed with the need for upgrading the correctional facilities, but he expressed concern that local communities would have to foot the bill.

SSF Gets Tough on Pollution Law Violations

By JANET PARKER

Ten South San Francisco industries have been in violation of the city's waste control ordinance for more than a year, city officials said.

The companies have been given until July 1 to fully comply with the city's ordinance.

A local tannery listed as one of the violators may have to shut down if forced to comply in full, a spokesman said.

The first of the abatement orders was issued in July 1975.

Director of Public Services Frank Addiego said all 10 companies have been attempting to comply with the city's waste control ordinance.

However, for several of the companies, compliance has been complicated by costs.

Addiego said the city and some of the industries may have to approach the Regional Water Quality Control Board officials together to ask for some relief or variance from the laws.

"We're going to help them with this," Addiego said. The 10 companies that have been cited, he said, are considered to be the most serious sources of sewage violations in the industrial community.

Addiego explained that state laws required cities to adopt sewage source control ordinances in 1974.

The South San Francisco ordinance prohibits the dumping of many different kinds of materials, including metals, gasoline, sand, cement and pesticides.

The wastewater also must pass certain tests, designed to assure that the quality of the discharged water is as pure as possible.

Each of the companies have been periodically submitting progress reports on their attempts to comply, Addiego said.

Industries which ultimately fail to comply could be slapped with cease and desist orders after public hearings, according to the ordinance. Any company that violates such an order could be subject to fines of up to $6,000 a day.

Individuals who pollute, according to the ordinance, can be fined from $25 to $500 for each day the violation continues.

The 10 local companies are E. H. Edwards Co., Poetsch and Peterson, Fuller-O'Brien Corp., Dupont and Co., Reichhold Chemicals, United Plating Works, Georgia-Pacific Corp., H. S. Crocker Co., Berkey Film Processing and Wildberg Brothers Co.

Charles Wagner, secretary-treasurer of Poetsch and Peterson, said the tannery might have to close down if it is forced to comply with current water quality regulations.

He said the company already is planning to install a pre-treatment facility at a cost of $100,000. And that, he said, still is not expected to reduce the chromium in the waste to the specifications of the South San Francisco ordinance.

In fact, he said, South San Francisco's regulations controlling the discharge of chromium — a common waste product in tanneries — are the stiffest anywhere in the country.

Unless Poetsch and Peterson can obtain a variance from the WQCB exempting the company from full compliance, it may mean the end of the local tannery, he said. Some 60 persons are employed there.

"We don't think it's toxic anyway," Wagner said. The Environmental Protection Agency, he said, currently is reviewing the danger associated with chromium.

Officials from several of the companies said they have spent "quite a bit" of money to comply with the laws.

One official said his company has spent the equivalent of nearly three months' profits in trying to meet the local discharge requirements.

Starving Students At SSF

Thirty-five South San Francisco High School students recently participated in a 72-hour "Starve for Survival" in order to raise money for an American Indian organization, Futures for Children.

Each student had a sponsor pledging at least three cents per hour which was donated to the organization.

During the 72 hours, the students consumed only 266 calories a day, figuring that is all the food in the world were equally distributed, each person would receive 266 calories per day.

Their intake consisted of one cup of plain cooked rice, one half cup of spinach and one cup of nonfat milk.

Each student was required to attend all classes, including physical education, and had to remain on campus during the starve. No radios, phonographs or tape recorders were permitted.

Students participating in the starve found they were better able to understand what starvation is about.

Lower Fare for Youths

A new 10-cent youth fare for passengers between 7 and 17 who ride SamTrans buses after 9 a.m. weekdays goes into effect April 1.

The new fare, which also is in effect all day on Saturdays, replaces the current 25-cent fare for young riders.

Before 9 a.m., students can travel for 15 cents a ride with the purchase of a Youth Discount Book, which provides 40 rides for $6.

Youth Discount Books are available at 50 SamTrans Reduced Fare Permit outlets, as well as at district headquarters at 400 S. El Camino, San Mateo.

Searching For Rare Butterfly

By JANET PARKER

Wrapped in warm jackets and armed with butterfly nets, two university students are stalking San Bruno Mountain in search of two species.

But the two young men are not collectors, out to capture the butterfly's beauty to mount on their wall. Quite the contrary, they are entomology students concerned about the future of the two species that they say are in danger of becoming extinct.

The students, Dick Arnold and Larry Orsak of the University of California at Berkeley, say that these two kinds of butterflies occur nowhere else in the world and already are on the federal endangered species list.

In fact, they say, certain aspects of the regional park proposed on the mountain may pose such a threat to the endangered butterflies that the entire colonies could be wiped out forever.

"It's so sad to lose these things before we know virtually anything about them," said Orsak. That, he said, is what happened tothe San Francisco Butterfly that once fluttered over this region. Now, that species is gone forever. Its habitat was destroyed and finally the genes of these insects were eliminated.

"You never know if something is going to have value to man later on," Orsak said.

And that's why the two graduate students have been venturing to the windy San Bruno Mountain periodically to tag the tiny creatures.

The researchs nab as many butterflies in the nets as possible, and, using a felt pen, mark each one with a harmless series of dots on the wing.

Then the butterflies are released and another collection is made.

Eventually, Arnold explained, after as many butterflies as possible are captured and marked, a scientific count will be made.

They'll be marking the butterflies for as long as they are flying — probably another two or three months.

The two species, according to Orsak, are the San Bruno Elfin and the Mission Blue.

The Elfin, Orsak said, is a small, brown butterfly. The Mission is a little larger, with brilliant iridescent blue on top and a grey underside.

The Mission Blue, he said, flies from April to June, feeding on the Lupin plants on the mountain. The Elfin flies for only a short time in March and early April and feeds on a native ice plant.

Orsak said there are only six species of butterflies in the entire country on the endangered species list, a product of the Endangered Species Act of 1973.

All six species, he said, are located in California. Three species of butterfly have already become extinct on the San Francisco peninsula since the turn of the century — proof that the demise of the Mission Blue and the San Bruno Elfin is a real possibility.

Le Pacini

One of the most frustrating things about attending such affairs as the recent Mission High School Athletic Alumni dinner — at least for a writer — is that you can't use any, of the sports gossip you pick up from scouts, former players, umpires and coaches because (1) it is told in confidence; (2) it is generally told under the influence of spirits; and (3) it isn't always accurate.

Once in a while you do pick up a genuine scoop, don't use it because of the above reasons, and then see it printed elsewhere by somebody else, who may have gotten it from your source under different, more lenient circumstances. That hurts.

For example, I picked up a hot rumor on a Giant trade with the Cardinals that sounds very plausible, and could still come off. But I can't use it because of one of the above.

I CAN tell about the hot tip given me by Al Vidal, former Mission basketball star and currently principal of Aptos Junior High in San Francisco. Vidal is one of the top college basketball officials on the West coast, and so when he told me that USF was going to beat Nevada-Las Vegas the next day by 10 points, "at least," ("because Las Vegas can shoot, but USF can shoot better") I went charging around looking for a bookie.

Fortunately, I didn't find one. Vidal's tip proved two things. That even real experts can be wrong, and that what I said in the first paragraph holds water.

Trivia, I can report on. Lloyb Dickey, the former great Mission High southpaw who later pitched brilliantly for the Seals and Padres in the PCL and was kept out of the Bigs only because he belonged to Cleveland in the era of Feller, Garcia, Lemon, et all, has been named player-manager of the baseball team of the Oldtimers Baseball Association of San Francisco.

THAT'S RIGHT — PLAYER-manager. And this ain't slow pitch softball. It's hard pitch hard ball, which has always been Dickey's game. He's well into his 40s, to put it kindly, and reports are that he can still fire — for a while.

The oldtimers, incidentally, play a full slate of home and away games — 13 of them this year. If you're interested in watching them play, stop by Sundays at either Funston Field in the Marina or Hennessy Field at Big Rec, 1 p.m. Whom do they play? Other oldtimers from places like Stockton, San Leandro, Santa Clara, San Jose and Oakland.

More trivia. One of the last baseball players to play in the Olympic Games (1954) was also in attendance: former All-City shortstop George Zucca, who was also an all-star at City College of San Francisco. In those days, baseball was played in the Olymppcs not as an official sport, but as an exhibition.

ALSO IN attendance for the first time in 25 years was old right fielder Bob Mangini of the Peninsula. Another who hadn't shown up for years was former Yankee-Baltimore great Gus Triandos, in from San Jose. Also, Rugger Ardizoia, a Coast League great who went to Commerce, but took his chances and showzd up in enemy territory, anyway.

Ardizoia came with Mickey Durmanich, a former great semi-pro umpire who is making a comeback. Dermanich was one of the crew of ushers at the USF games this year that, at least before the players trotted out onto the floor, gave the USF gym more a flavor of old San Francisco baseball than of collegiate basketball.

Also on the crew were Tony Patch, Goose Gosland and Joe Sprinz. And, of course, there was Ken Dito doing play-by-play for San Francisco cablevision.

BUT THE highlight of the evening for yours truly was shaking hands with Bruno Pacini, a Pacifica resident who is no relation and whom I'd never met. Pacini was my boyhood hero, a tough little guard for the Mission football team when I was in grade school and junior high. I saw almost every game he ever played, and yet our paths never crossed, even though he informed me that he often got phone calls from people who thought he was me — people complaining about a column I had written, usually.

I ran into him at the bar, and he is a nicer guy than I had imagined. He even bought me a drink, and fulfilled a childhood fantasy: drinking at a bar with Bruno Pacini!

GETTING back to USF, the only comment I have on what happened to them, particularly against Las Vegas, is to say that what happened convinced me of something I had heard all season: that guard Chubby Cox is overrated. He was the guy who was supposed to have molded the team with his play-making ability and leadership.

Actually, it was he who allowed the panic to set in against the hounding Las Vegas defense early in the game when at one stretch, by my count, he turned the ball over on five consecutive occasions. I don't care how good the Las Vegas defense was, such ball handling does not denote cool leadership.

IT NEVER would have happened to K. C. Jones, whose assist records Cox shattered during the regular season. Much was made of that, but shouldn't have been. A player can't get an assist unless the man he passes off to scores.

When Jones played, USF was a defensive team and scored only about half of what it scored this season. So, the only way Cox could have been properly compared to Jones as a play maker would have been if he had made TWICE as many assists as Jones — which he didn't.

I'm so seldom right that I like to brag when I am, and I hope you remember a column I did early in the pro basketball season, when Portland was tearing up the NBA, and I wrote something to the effect, "Wait until the road games and the pressure of the stretch run sets in, and Bill Walton gets his inevitable injuries, or just decides he doesn't feel like playing."

LOCAL NOTE: Lefty Bob McClure, the former Terra Nova High whiz whose career was slowed last year when he broke his arm, is reportedly making a comeback for Kansas City and may be their ace southpaw reliefer this year.

After his off-season broken arm last year, McClure was shipped to Omaha, but was ineffective for most of the season. Then Bill Fischer, the organization's minor league pitching coach, got a hold of McClure and changed his motion, and Bob began a steady improvement which showed him winning eight of his last nine decisions at Omaha at the tag end of '76, finishing with a 2.97 ERA.

Reports are that McClure's not throwing quite as hard as he once did, but that he has better control and no arm problems at all.

MAKE ONE tiny mistake and Heinie Thompson will catch you at it. A few weeks ago I was naming big league Italian managers, and in mentioning Frank Lucchessi, I for some reason reverted to the past as I was typing his name and identified him as manager of the Phillies. He of course is now with Texas, as Heinie Thompson knows. And will never let me forget.

Suit—

Bruno Mountain that Visitacion Associates filed the lawsuit under the improper government code was wrong.

That decision will have a bearing only inasmuch as it now will not be raised after Visitacion amends or files a new lawsuit.

County supervisors voted March 19, 1976, to modify the county general plan to permit 2,235 housing units on San Bruno Mountain, but to preserve in open space the so-called "Saddle Area," where Visitacion Associates planned 5,420 housing units.

Following that action, Visitacion attorney Howard L. Ellman said, "There will be commotion, disruption, litigation and no project."

The litigation was instituted last September.

"Games Day" will be featured for Daly City playground youngsters from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at two central locations: Westmoor Park on April 6 and George Washington School on April 7. A variety of fun games will include team relays, races, tug 'o wars, team ball and much more. Details of this and other Easter vacation week programs may be obtained from the Recreation Office of local playground leaders.

canceled in December. Since Jan. 1, Broadmoor police services have been supervised by the Daly City Police Department, for the purpose of providing insurance coverage. The agreement will end June 30 and the police commission is obliged to begin talks now on the future of police protection.

If the unincorporated area keeps its independent department, the cost for the coming year will be a minimum of $254,000 budget, said McCloskey.

He said that since 70 per cent of Broadmoor residents voted last year to double their tax rate to keep the department, the area has been reassessed.

Property values have gone from $12 million to $19.5 million. Thus, McCloskey said, taxes will triple. A homeowner paying $40 for current police protection may have to pay $120 for the coming year.

Under questioning, McCloskey conceded that taxes may not have to be raised to the authorized 1.5 per cent assessment level, but he said, "It will come close, maybe to 1.37 per cent."

McCloskey reiterated that although the first talk with Daly City officials did not produce any estimates, it would be much cheaper to keep a contract with the city.

Former Broadmoor police chief Bill Beard, who now serves as a captain in the supervisory arrangement, said, "Working conditions are 100 per cent effective between the two departments."

projections based upon that sample and reached an unsupportable conclusion.

He said his client has not yet surrendered to authorities.

Padreddii said it appears that Flowers intends to cooperate with State Department of Health officials and the court.

Arraignment has been scheduled at 9 a.m., April 11, in the South San Francisco courthouse, where the complaint was filed.

The charges, Padreddii said, are three felony violations of the State Welfare and Institution Code and three felony counts of the State Penal Code.

All the violations, he said, allege false and fraudulent claims in the state MediCal program.

Padreddii said Flowers is an "influential member of the pharmaceutical profession."

Mrs. Flowers — contacted at the Daly City pharmacy — said her husband is an active member of the California Pharmaceutical Association and many other professional organizations.

Padreddii said he was joined in the investigation by Jim Whitehead, an investigator for the San Mateo County District Attorney's office. Charges were filed by Deputy Dist. Atty. John Garvic.

The complaint resulted, Padreddii said, after an audit was conducted by the State Department of Health at the Daly City pharmacy.

The alleged violations, he said, were linked to about five San Francisco board and care homes, for which Flowers supplies prescriptions monthly.

Padreddii said he found that, in some cases, there were no prescriptions to substantiate billings to the MediCal program.

In other instances, he said, the quantity and strength of the drugs reported to MediCal for billing were increased from the original prescriptions.

In other cases, he said, so-called "non-formulary drugs" — those that are not covered by the MediCal program — were allegedly billed to the state program. Such drugs, Padreddii said, would include those that are bought over the counter. Code numbers allegedly were changed so that MediCal would pick up the bill, the investigator said.

The South San Francisco MediCal office investigates MediCal users from the Oregon border to San Benito County.

Investigators are permitted to check records only as far back as three years, he said.

Once the audit of the Daly City pharmacy began, Padreddii said, the violations ceased.

Padreddii said there was no difficulty in conducting the investigation or the audit.

pride in his employe, said, "There's a real square guy. I wish all my help was as honest as he is."

Pop got a job nearer to his small house.

It was a saloon on San Pedro Avenue and Pop had to report for work at 6 a.m. to clean up and get everything in shape for the day's business.

On the second day of Pop's employment, one of the saloon owners came in shortly before 7 a.m. to get some things he had left the night before. The place was jumping with customers.

Every bar stool was filled.

Everybody was having a great time. Some of the drinkers even had two and three drinks lined up in front of them.

"This Pop Brown is some go-getter. I've never seen business this good at this time of the morning," the owner remarked.

The owner silently counted heads and did some mental arithmetic on how much the take should be.

He walked over to the register and cranked the handle to get a total figure on the cash taken in that day.

The register came up blank.

All those drinks. All the customers lined up at the bar, had been "non paying guests" of Pop Brown.

Next: Brown gets another job.

checked out with the San Mateo County District Attorney's Office, according to Trempeter.

"We have not been aware of any wrongdoing," he added.

District officials met last week with Allen Brown, chief statistics officer for the State Teachers Retirement Services.

Brown requested information on Miss Tobias' employment from the district, and said he will study the records to determine whether she should be considered a district employe or an independent contractor.

"There are about 16 criteria you can apply, such as whether certain benefits are being received," he said in a telephone call from his Sacramento office.

Brown said he is studying five other cases in the state which are similar to that of Miss Tobias. He expects to have a decision in the JEB matter sometime next week.

If he rules against Miss Tobias, she could lose her pension for the time she spent as a consultant, he noted. The district would not be penalied.

Perfect Pitching

Serra High School sophomore T. J. Noonan recently pitched a no-hitter to lead the Serra Junior Varsity baseball team to a 7-9 victory in the league opener over Sacred Heart.

Noonan struck out 10 of the first 12 batters he faced to completely handcuff the Irish. He had 13 strikeouts in all. He was also one of the offensive standouts with two singles and four runs batted in.

Mateo; and S. Yee and Mrs. S. Yee, 200 Stilt Court, Foster City.

Relatives contacted said they had been told by PanAm that their family members on the flight had only been listed as missing or unaccounted for.

Those who began to learn that their relatives apparently were not listed among survivors exclaimed, "Oh, no, that can't be true. It must be wrong. We have only been told they are missing."

The Querantes are well-known, longtime Redwood City residents. Their daughter is Diane Chesler and their son is Dennis Querantes, both Redwood City residents.

Querantes is the owner-operator of an electrical supply house, Lou's Electric, on Woodside Road in Redwood City. He had previously worked at the Pabco plant in Redwood City. Mrs. Querantes has worked for a lithographer. She had been expecting to retire shortly.

Mrs. Bernasconi has been employed as a checker at the Laurelwood Market in San Mateo, it is reported, and is known to hundreds of residents in this area.

This was the couple's third air flight of their lifetime.

The Bernasconis had flown to the Caribbean last year and enjoyed their trip so much, they booked on the charter to the Mediterranean, anticipating another delightful vacation, it was reported.

Some relatives said, "We have been waiting by the phone for hours, ever since we heard of the crash. We were told about 2 a.m. that they were only missing, and they would get back to us with whatever information they could.

Mrs. Freedman made the cruise, a close friend said today, because she and her husband were accustomed to checking out major new charter tours as part of their travel agency procedures.

She had made about 20 such trips in the past two years, her friend, who declined to be identified, commented.

A week ago Sunday, after attending a San Francisco Symphony party at Notre Dame College, Belmont, Mrs. Freedman had been guest of a bon voyage dinner party in Millbrae. She had looked forward at that time to this tour as one of the best she had heard of.

She worked with her husband in the travel agency business before their marriage, and had asssisted Murray Freedman with the Empire Travel Agency since, helping develop many large tours.

In addition to her symphony participation, Mrs. Freedman had worked with many charitable organizations and others. She had been active with the Presbyterian Hospital Auxiliary, the Florence Crittendon Services, of which she was president five years ago, the Toastmistresses and, in Daly City, with the First National Bank of Daly City.

She is the mother of two sons, Jeffrey Freedman, now attending the University of California at Berkeley, and Richard Freedman, attending San Francisco State University.

Bernasconi is the owner of a concrete block manufacturing firm in Redwood City, Cavetex.

The couple has lived in Redwood City since 1945.

Karin Nelson, about 60, has been a part-time and on-call nurse at Mills Memorial Hospital. Her husband has been retired from Lenkurt in San Carlos.

Mrs. Nelson graduated from a Stockholm nursing school and is a native of Sweden. Her family, whom the couple has frequently visited, lives in Stockholm. Mrs. Nelson has been employed at Mills since 1952. Her maiden name is Karin Runfelt.

Big Increase in Assessments Seen

San Mateo County Assessor Jack Estes warned recently of a projected 30 to 35 per cent increase in assessed valuation of residential property this year, potentially the highest increase in 11 years.

In a review of reassessment trends to date, Estes reported that as of mid-March reappraisal of all real property, including residential, commercial and industrial, but not including personal property, is up 23.8 per cent over last year.

Last year, Estes said, the increase was 4.1 per cent. But in that year, he explained, no residential property was reassessed because of a freeze ordered by the Board of Supervisors.

In the 1975-76 fiscal year, which included the reappraisal of homes, the total increase was 18.1 per cent.

Estes said that final assessment figures for all real and personal property will not be known until April. Reassessment notices will be mailed April 11.

"We have no final figures, on the increase for residential property, so far," said Estes, "but we are estimating between 30 and 35 per cent."

The assessor said his office this year reappraised property by physical inspection in 10 of the 19 cities.

Property in the other nine cities was reassessed by what Estes called "trending." He explained that in the trended cities reappraisals were made by using real estate sales figures in determining the increase in the inflationary value of property.

Preliminary figures show that reassessment increases are highest in the cities of Woodside, Portola Valley, Hillsborough, Daly City, Brisbane, Pacifica and San Mateo. Property in those cities and several others, all of which was physically inspected, has increased in assessed value from 31.89 to 50.14 per cent.

Estes' figures indicate that new assessed value of property in the trended property which has been physically reappraised.

The range of reassessment in the trended cities such as Atherton, Belmont, Burlingame, Foster City, San Bruno, San Carlos and South San Francisco, is currently from 6 to 19 per cent.

His office will talk with any property owner who believes his reassessment is unfair, Estes said.

"We are encouraging any property owner who doesn't believe that the reassessment is about 25 per cent of what he could sell his house for to come in and talk to us," Estes stated.

After July 1, property owners who wish to challenge the reassessment must file for an appearance before a hearing officer.

Regional Views Are Presented

County governments are out-dated, Assemblyman John Knox told the San Mateo County Regional Planning Committee Thursday night.

Regional government is the coming thing, he said.

San Mateo's new County Manager, David Nichols, said he does not agree with Knox, but that there are many possibilities for greater cooperation between cities and counties.

Nichols and Knox were both speakers for the annual RPC dinner meeting at Crystal Springs Golf Club.

Knox, long an advocate of Bay Area government, said his campaigns over the past decade have resulted in increased cooperation between various local governments.

He said he would probably introduce new legislation this fall aimed at some kind of consolidation of governmental functions. Revenue sharing between local and state entities might be a part of such a plan, he said.

Nichols said he could not agree that the county form of government is archaic.

He said he has been greatly impressed by San Mateo County's organization in the seven weeks he has been here but that a few changes are possible.

These changes will be aimed at greater efficiency and economy, he said, and greater cooperation.

Some areas in which cities and the county might improve their cooperation, he said, include civil disaster preparedness, law enforcement communications, data processing, library services, building inspection and Municipal Courts.

"In my view a county-wide consolidated Municipal Court system would be more efficient," he said.

Nichols forecast an increased use of joint powers agreements and other forms of contracts for cooperation between San Mateo's 19 cities and the county.

He also predicted two years of belt-tightening for San Mateo County, budget-wise.

The current year's expenditures were "underbudgeted" he said, and next year's budget is going to have to allow for "catching up."

Nichols said that the planning period for the county's next annual budget would be a time of "bloodletting."

Long-Term Contract

"It looks like we will have to go to a long-term contract with Daly City," Broadmoor's Police Commission Chairman John McCloskey said.

McCloskey's assessment came after a meeting Wednesday night with Daly City officials. Police commissioners and the Citizens Advisory Committee met with city representatives to discuss the future of the Broadmoor Police Department.

The Police Commission head said he believes that "it will be considerably cheaper" for Broadmoor residents to continue some type of police service contract with Daly City.

Another meeting has been set for April 7 at 4 p.m. to continue talks between the jurisdictions.

Sailor Picks Hard Way To Get Suitcase

Stanley Nelson Flanagan, a 23-year-old sailor stationed at the Treasure Island Naval Training Center, picked a hard way to try to get a new suitcase Thursday at San Francisco International Airport, sheriff's deputies report.

According to Deputy Les Caldwell, Flanagan picked up a suitcase owned by a Pleasanton man at an unclaimed luggage area. He said Flanagan walked to a restroom and dumped all the man's possessions in a trash can so he could put his own clothes in the suitcase.

Officers were alerted by suspicious onlookers, and Flanagan was taken into custody as he walked out of the restroom. He was booked at the county jail on a charge of grand theft.

Power

has no power to give.

It was planned that the first 1,100 megawatt unit of the company's new $1 billion Diablo Canyon nuclear power plant near San Luis Obispo would be put into operation by midyear.

But because company engineers failed to take in the offshore Hosgri earthquake fault in their planning for the new generating facility and because they failed to reckon with anti-nuclear plant forces, licensing of the plant by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission is in question.

Geothermal power from geysers near Calistoga, which produce about 5 per cent of the company's generating capacity, are operating at full capacity.

The utility has plans to produce coal from the Rocky Mountains, but these are still far in the future.

So are plans to import liquid natural gas in tankers from the north slope of Prudhoe Bay, south Alaska, Indonesia and Australia.

Such esoteric techniques as solar thermal electricity production, photovoltaic (to convert light directly into electricity), biomass, wind and ocean thermal gradients are still in the experimental lab and offer no hope for the present.

The company is even working with the Environmental Protection Agency and the City of Mountain View "to extricate clean methane gas from the city's sanitary landfill and distribute it."

But as all these remain far in the future, PG&E is pinning its immediate hopes on negotiations with the Southern California Edison Co., the Sierra Pacific Power Co., the Los Angeles Department of Water & Power, the San Diego Gas & Electric Co., the Nevada Power Co. and the Salt River Project in Arizona.

The "Pacific Intertie," the Pacific Coast network usually used to transport power from the Pacific Northwest to the south, would be reversed and used to transmit electric power from the southern part of the state to Central and Northern California.

The Southern California companies, which mostly use generating plants powered by fuel oil, now have a surplus beyond their own needs.

But will it be enough to meet our needs — especially in the long run?

Even if this surplus provides us with more power during the months in the immediate future, its long range availability is doubtful.

Assuming it will be available, this power will cost more. PG&E has already asked the state Public Utilities Commission to increase rates for electricity by $12,636,000 and by $8,975,000 for gas. This represents increased costs of buying power from other companies. Under state law the utility is allowed to pass on its additional costs to the consumer on a dollar to dollar basis.

The latest request would represent an increase of .027 cents per kilowatt hour to the user.

Even with the additional power, the critical months have not yet arrived.

They will come as farmers cry for more power to operate the pumps on their wells.

They will come as temperatures heighten and homeowners turn on their air conditioners.

The company is urging its customers to conserve energy to the maximum extent and has already appealed to industry, governments and large office buildings to use power only as absolutely necessary.

"If exceptionally hot weather should cause higher than predicted air conditioning and agriculture pumping loads, or if unplanned outage of a major generating unit occurs, we would attempt to obtain assistance from other systems," according to Barton W. Shackelford, senior vice president of PG&E.

"Should these systems be faced with similar contingencies at the same time, such assistance might not be sufficient," he warns.

"We would call upon customers to make a maximum effort to reduce electric usage. If this did not result in enough load reduction to match capacity, we would have to resort to rotating interruptions of service to customers on selected circuits. These interruptions would be by areas, lasting probably from one to four hours, depending on the seriousness of the situation."

Complicating the problem still further is the anticipated population increase during the coming year due to renewed residential building in an expanding economy.

In San Mateo County, the utility predicts 3,000 new dwelling units will be constructed in 1977.

Although the company has planned for the future, it seems the future has not only caught up with but passed the company's projections.

Thus, the immediate result is to be higher utility bills.

And the six-month forecast is for rolling blackouts.

So, do not be surprised next August or September when the company serves notice that your power will be off for an hour or more.

The plan is to have "controlled service interruptions" at the most convenient times possible.

But don't get angry when your neighbor across the street has his power on while yours is off. It just means he is on a different circuit, and his time, too, will come.

METERS TELL THE STORY

Meters pointing to zero at the Belden Hydroelectric plant on the Feather River tell of the power shortage crises caused by this year's record drought.

S. Bruno Firm On Fireworks

Every city in the county has been informed that the San Bruno City Council is counting on them to support a one-year ban on fireworks — when the council isn't really counting on them at all.

A mix-up at a March 14 council meeting wasn't discovered until the minutes were unveiled this week.

There—in black and white—was the council's motion: "A one-year moratorium to prohibit fireworks provided the majority of the cities in the county declare such a moratorium."

City Clerk Terri Rassmussen said that's what she and her deputies understood and that's what she wrote down.

But four members of the council say that wasn't their vote at all. They say there will be a fireworks ban in San Bruno regardless of what any other city in the county does.

The fifth member, Tony Governale, who voted against the ban anyway, said he thought the ban would be effective only if other cities went along.

"If other cities do not comply, the whole purpose would be defeated," Governale said. If civic groups in neighboring cities are going to get to sell fireworks to raise money this year, so should San Bruno groups."

Councilman John Barnard, who made the motion, said, however, that he intended the ban to be effective regardless of what other cities do.

"We have a perfect reason for doing it because of the water shortage this year," Barnard said.

Tangy Bread Recipe

NELL NORTON

Good morning, good cooks.

Pineapple-Cheese Bread is a tasty extra that will fit every eating occasion. The ingredients, sweet crushed pineapple and tangy cheddar cheese are greatly enhanced when the bread is served warm and buttery for breakfast. The bread also tastes good as a TV snack or can make a salad luncheon a complete meal. It's delicious, moist and the flavor is even better after a few days.

PINEAPPLE-CHEESE BREAD

- 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour
- ¾ cup sugar
- 3 teaspoons baking powder
- ½ teaspoon soda
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1 cup crushed pineapple
- 2 tablespoons melted shortening
- 1 large egg
- ½ cup grated sharp Cheddar cheese
- ½ cup chopped walnuts

Sift together the two cups flour, three-fourths cup sugar, three teaspoons baking powder, half teaspoon soda and one teaspoon salt. Stir the one cup crushed pineapple and two tablespoons melted shortening into lightly beaten egg. Add dry mixture to the egg, shortening and pineapple. Stir quickly until all is moistened. Lightly stir in the half cup each grated cheese and chopped walnuts.

Turn into greased loaf pan (9x5x3 inches). Bake in moderate oven (350-degrees) about one hour, or until browned and cooked completely through in center. (Use 325-degree oven for glass loaf pan). Cool completely before cutting.

NOTE: This recipe for Pineapple Cheese Bread also makes excellent muffins. Fix an extra batch and freeze for use at meals or individual snacks.

Help Wanted

The following agencies have requested volunteer assistance from the Volunteer Bureau/Voluntary Action Center of San Mateo County, with offices in Burlingame and Daly City.

The local phone number for area residents is 992-0957, an answering service. Residents may also call the Burlingame office at 342-0801, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Special Olympics — The Special Olympics for the retarded children and young adults of San Mateo County will be held April 16 at Mills High School. Many volunteers are needed to be guides and act as a "Friend for the Day" to the many participants. Over 300 volunteers are needed.

American Red Cross — General office assistance is needed to answer telephones, do some typing and act as receptionist.

Friendly Visiting Service — Lonely individuals confined to their homes, in convalescent hospitals or in boarding homes need a friendly visitor. The time is flexible and the need is countywide. Both men and women are needed to visit.

Aid to Victims and Witnesses — Volunteers are needed to assist victims and witnesses of violent crimes. Complete training is provided and this could be a valuable learning experience for anyone interested in the criminal justice system.

Crocker School — There are many opportunities for volunteers to assist at the school including helping with the following: clerical work, in the classroom with small groups, individual tutoring, sharing a hobby or skill, helping in a cooking class, in the library, and much more. Any day is convenient and the duties are unlimited.

Decision Stalled On Mussel Rock

No decision was made recently by the Central Coast Zone Conservation Commission on Daly City's request to locate a solid waste transfer station at the Mussel Rock dump site.

The commission, meeting in Santa Cruz, agreed to postpone the matter until an April 4 meeting. The commission staff requested more time to study the proposal.

No one at the meeting spoke against the proposed transfer station site.

The transfer station would be used to switch garbage from small to large trucks for transport to the county's Ox Mountain dump. It would serve Daly City and Pacifica and would be operated by Daly City and the Daly City Scavenger Co.

The state has prohibited dumping after Aug. 15 at the Mussel Rock site because of fear of landsliding and subsequent ocean pollution.

Speaking in favor of the proposal at the meeting were Daly City Manager David Rowe, Daly City Mayor Albert M. Teglia, Pacifica Councilwoman Janice Fulford and Albert Sereni of Daly City Scavanger.

Also testifying in favor of the transfer station site were two members of ALERT, a Pacifica community group based in the Edgemar neighborhood. The old Edgemar school site was an alternate location for the facility. The site was not chosen because of neighborhood opposition.

New Barronshire Restaurant Open

The beautiful Barronshire restaurant at the SAN FRANCISCO AIRPORT HILTON is now open, reports General Manager DANIEL McHALE. This completes a $4 million expansion program which includes a new Conference Center (over 9,000 square feet), new lobby, enlarged coffee shop and main dining room, the new Maggie's Bar and Disco, and The Barronshire. Special dedication ceremonies will be held next Friday, April 1, with Peninsula mayors, San Mateo and San Francisco officials in attendance.....Over 20 different desserts are listed on the menu at the BONANZA Family restaurant, and that includes 12 kinds of pies.....PHIL LEHR'S famous Pay-by-ounce Steakery in San Francisco has elegant banquet facilities for parties and meetings from 50 to 175 persons. As you might expect, food and service are on a par with the matchless decor.....ENRICO ROMANO'S "Fisherman-style" CRAB CIOPPINO, with garlic bread, is a fast seller every night of the week at his ROMANO'S Italian restaurant in Rockaway Beach.....LA PINATA in downtown Burlingame has mini menus for take home. Handy to keep by the phone for those Mexican food orders to go. Everything on the menu is prepared to travel.

Special One-Night Lounge Booking

THE DEL-POMPADOURS were such a hit one Sunday night at the BAYHILL LOUNGE that Owners MEL CICERO and HARRY CURUSIS are bringing the group back on Sunday, April 3. The seven talented musicians, all from the Bay Area, have regular daytime jobs....Requests for the new menus at NICK'S in Rockaway Beach has reached an all-time high. With the cost of printing going in the same direction, souvenir seekers may obtain menus for the slight charge of $2.50. Well worth it, too..... "Botch" Bacigalupi, assistant manager and head barkeep during the day shift at OLIVER'S in South San Francisco, always keeps things moving and happening, says co-owner TONY LA TORRE.....There's disco dancing seven nights a week in the Captain's Tavern at RAMADA INN, San Francisco. Enjoy dinner in the restaurant, then stroll over to the tavern for the musical action. Ample free parking at this Fisherman's Wharf Inn.....Finders keepers: NINA LICATA, the matriarch of the famed Licata clan who own-operate VINCE'S ITALIAN and SEAFOOD restaurant, was enjoying appetizers of mussels at a recent Sunday gathering when she bit into something hard. That's right, she is now the owner of another natural pearl (this also happened to VINCE LICATA several years ago).

Lehr's Greenhouse Continues to Branch

LEHR'S GREENHOUSE Garden Restaurant in San Francisco has been such a fabulous success since the day it opened its doors that MURRAY LEHR, "The Green Grower," just doubled the size of the garden to accommodate the ever-growing crowds. Two things remain unchanged, however: the continental cuisine and the super-attentive service....Following his matinee show at Circle Star Theater, singer-composer Neil Sadaka surprised the early diners at SCOTTY CAMPBELL'S when he and a party of 17 dropped by the Redwood City restaurant for dinner. Since the popular recording artist and his entourage didn't have another show until 7:30 that evening, Sadaka's leisurely stay was a delight to the constant flow of diners . . . The "Cocktail Hour" in the VILLA HOTEL Lounge features piano bar entertainment and a bountiful array of hot hors d'oeuvres in a cheery town-and-country atmosphere ...Horsefeathers, a trio of versatile musicians featuring hits from the '60s and '70s, present the nightly entertainment, Wednesday through Sunday, in the Cellar Saloon of the St. James restaurant in San Mateo . . . Easter Sunday will be quite an occasion at the BIT OF ENGLAND in Burlingame, as the Sunday Buffet will debut. This buffet, which is featured during the week, will be an every-Sunday attraction thereafter, along with the usual breakfast and bruncheon-type items. . . .

Expansion at Skyline Delayed Pending Study

A decision about adding four or five classrooms to the campus of Skyline College in San Bruno has been delayed by the trustees of the San Mateo County Community College District.

The administrations of both Skyline and the district's central office agreed Wednesday that Skyline needs more classrooms, especially during the peak morning hours.

But the trustees weren't so sure about that.

Trustee James Tormey said district enrollment has not come close to living up to expectations. He added that elementary and high school districts in this county are all experiencing drastic enrollment declines.

Besides, Tormey noted further, while Skyline may be bulging with students, College of San Mateo is not. He warned against adding more classrooms at Skyline on the basis of a lack of demonstrated districtwide need.

Trustee James Rudolph agreed, commenting, "New construction would shock people I've talked to."

Trustee Robert Tarver also expressed concern about what could be coming in the near future. Said he, "The enrollment drop is on its way."

Trustee Eleanore Nettle said, "This is not orderly planning."

At her urging, the trustees voted, 5-0, to order the administration to begin a districtwide classroom utilization study, combined with a careful program analysis.

The Skyline classrooms, if they are constructed, would actually become part of a new and expanded automotive program in the future. During the next two or three years, however, those rooms could be used to ease the student crunch in other courses.

All of the trustees said they are interested in determining if students can be coaxed into using all of the colleges in the afternoon. Classes held after noon at all three schools are normally poorly received and sparsely attended.

Skyline spokesmen told the trustees that one of the reasons for that is that students at their school typically work in the afternoon and evening.

In other matters the trustees:

- Approved the first phase of the expansion of the Skyline automotive program into a new building. (The proposed additional rooms would be part of a second phase.)
- Listened to a status report on the district's educational master plan.
- Listened to an analysis of how the district's budget will be arrived at this spring. Business Manager Irene Bluth took the trustees on a step-by-step trip through the budget process maze. The 1977-78 preliminary budget will be first presented at a special meeting of the governing board at 8:15 p.m. March 30 at College of San Mateo.
- Learned that Redwood City's Canada College is close to opening its new bookstore-multipurpose building. That is scheduled within two weeks.
- Congratulated Skyline's state small school basketball championship team and its coach, Lyle Newcomer. Said Newcomer, "We're still looking for someone else to play."
- Watched a portion of the Canada drama department's version of "You're a Good Man, Charlie Brown." Snoopy was not ruled out of order.

2 Suspects Charged

Two suspects were arrested and charged with burglary recently in South San Francisco by officers who had received a call about a burglary in progress.

Officers apprehended Edward Reid Darrell, 25, of Palo Alto, and Walter Manning, 21, of Milpitas, in front of a house at 3979 Kent Way, while a neighbor remained on the phone with the police dispatcher.

Police said the neighbor indicated that the two suspects were the same ones she had observed walk from the rear of the residence.

Police said they confirmed that the home had been burglarized.

Thrailkill Retires

PRESIDIO OF SAN FRANCISCO — Donald D. Thrailkill, 169 St. Francis Blvd., Daly City, will retire for the second time April 9, when he completes 40 years of federal service.

His first retirement was 16 years ago when he completed 24 years of active duty with the Army, 20 of those years as a Master Sergeant.

Upon his discharge from active duty, he received an appointment in civil service at the Presidio, where he has served as the purchasing agent with the Directorate of Industrial Operations, Maintenance Division for most of the past 16 years.

Lone Gunman Robs Theater

A man wielding a handgun robbed the Seaview Theater of $173 at 8:30 p.m. March 22 at 520 Palmetto Ave., Pacifica, police report.

When the suspect demanded that the cashier fill up a paper bag with money, the cashier did so and the suspect fled, police said.

Officers are investigating the crime.
